Happenings in and Around Frank

C. J. Thompsons returned from a business trip to Calgary on Sunday night next will be "The Crack of Doom."

W. Graham, of Brandon, Man., was registered at the Rocky Mountain Sanatorium on Monday.

B. Rourke went to Pincher Creek on Saturday on a business trip. He returned to Frank on Monday.

We are pleased to be able to report that W. Stimpson is improving from a severe attack of sciatica.

The headquarters of the R. N. W. M. P. will be transferred from Frank to Bellevue. Corporal Bewers will be in charge.

Quite a number of our citizens attended the entertainment given by the W. C. T. U. in Central Baptist church, at Blairmore on Monday last.

Ice cream and refreshments will be served on the veranda or the inside of the Rocky Mountain Sanatorium every Wednesday and Sunday all day.

Jack McLeod and M. Rhynas, proprietors of a large horse ranch on the South Fork, were in town last week looking over the local horse market.

F. R. Colomer, managing director of the Canadian Coal Consolidated, left on the "Wye" on Friday morning en route to the opening of the Rocky Mountain Sanatorium. It is through a mere chance that my visit to Frank coincides with this important ceremony.

I am sorry that someone else higher in authority than myself is to speak at the opening.

The honor belongs to our worthy President, Mr. Maurice Tilley, but in his absence I shall endeavor to fill the position to the best of my ability.

Since several years a tenancy has been conducted for a small sanatorium. That sanatorium has of late years increased in size and the number of patients was daily increasing and the building was becoming inadequate for the number of patients to be treated. It was also wanting in modern conveniences. In the interest of the patients we decided to build a new structure fully equipped with modern facilities. The new building will be more numerous and more complete, I hope, where the sick will be well accommodated, well provided for, thanks to the care of Mr. Gemeny, recently manager of large hotels in France, whose services have been very fortunate in obtaining the services of a world-famous doctor, Dr. Macleod, who will be given to the care of our worthy doctors, Dr. Macleod, Dr. McKay, Dr. McKenzie and Dr. de Marigny.

In the order that the success of this establishment may be completed and assured it is important to have easy and rapid access to the neighborhood at all seasons of the year.

The government of Alberta, I am informed, is at the present time contemplating the expenditure of large sums of money to be applied towards the better improvement of the highways of the Crow's Nest Pass. In this policy they are to be commended. We shall rejoice to see their plans speedily carried into effect.

It is a matter that concerns the public health.

It also concerns the prosperity of the town of Frank and district, which would be developed still more rapidly than it has been during the last few years.

I regret that there is not sitting among us a man who can be a representative of mining interests in the District. I know that they would have been here except for a meeting of the operators at Calgary. But we have occasion to be often together, representatives of mining interests.

The two operators in Germany and Austria, the Association of Mine Owners in Australia, the International Association of Mining Engineers which would be possible for one or more to perform; in this way they could be more successful in their properties. One of the many advantages that would accrue from having the mines of the Crow's Nest

Addresses Delivered at Opening

The addresses which were given by Mr. F. R. Colomer, managing director, and Mr. A. E. Muller, general manager of the Canadian Coal Consolidated, at the official opening of the Rocky Mountain Sanatorium and which were crowded out of last week's issue, appear below. When introducing the chairman, Mr. Muller said:

Chairman, ladies and gentlemen:

This evening we have an occasion such as this, which is designed to commemorate the inauguration of an institution which we are dedicating to the service of mankind, it is fitting that expression should be given to such sentiments as these as are aroused in our minds.

As is customary these expressions will take the form of toasts.

We are fortunate in having with us to-night one of the heads of the Company whose enterprise has afforded opportunity for this gathering, Frank H. Colomer, managing director, who will provide this evening as chairman.

Owing, however, to the fact that Mr. Colomer feels somewhat不便 about attempting to make himself understood in English it becomes necessary that I act as Vice-Chairman.

Mr. Colomer, being introduced to the gathering, rose and said:

Ladies and gentlemen—it is indeed a pleasure for me to be here to-day, at the opening of the Rocky Mountain Sanatorium. It is through a mere chance that my visit to Frank coincides with this important ceremony.

I am sorry that someone else higher in authority than myself is to speak at the opening.

The honor belongs to our worthy President, Mr. Maurice Tilley, but in his absence I shall endeavor to fill the position to the best of my ability.

Happenings in and Around Bellevue

The migration out of the town continues apace.

Mr. George Christie has gone to Calgary seeking work.

Miss A. Budge and Miss L. Allsopp have secured positions in Lethbridge and taken them up.

C. last week was busy seeking a spot where he could place 5 cents to the best advantage. Perhaps the little coin will soon be a relic of the past. Stick to it F.C.

The strike begins with many of the families in a weakened condition, financially, through the idleness of the mine since Dec. 9th last. Perhaps Bellevue will be the town to suffer most from a long struggle. Yet the men are determined to stand by the Union to the uttermost.

Monday three young men went to Calgary looking for work. These are young men who arrived from Yorkshire since the explosion and have only put in a few days work in the district. They have had a poor introduction to the proverbial Canadian prosperity, but we wish them good luck in the new venture.

Pass associated into one vast syndicate would be the consideration of the establishment of a central power plant, thereby reducing very materially the cost as compared with individual conditions where each small industry operates a separate power plant.

I wish to thank the business men of Frank, who have always been devoted to us since the day when we took over, under peaceful and difficult circumstances, the interests of the Canadian-American Coal & Coke Company. Thanks to their confidence and their support, we have been able to overcome all difficulties and our mine enters to-day on the way to prosperity under the skillful direction of our general manager, Mr. Muller.

Ladies and Gentlemen: It is not without a certain emotion that I conclude, for never before has it been granted me to preside over such a large gathering nor to feel myself surrounded by as much good fellowship. I thank you with all my heart all who assist us in such large numbers in our efforts to sustain and to those in particular who have come long distances to attend it.

I drink your health, to the health of your families and to the prosperity of the Rocky Mountain Sanatorium and of the town of Frank.

Mr. Muller followed with the following speech:

Mr. chairman, ladies and Gentlemen: With pleasure and delight we look upon the present prosperity of Canada.

Our newspapers are filled with the wide-spread interest taken in the proposed concurrent legislation by the Governments of the United States and Canada leading to reciprocity in their respective railroads.

Our citizens here have the coking coal and our markets are naturally to the south of us, we are glad of the efforts of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his government toward the opening up of more advantageous markets than we have had heretofore.

Our newspapers also report that our Alberto, the Hon. Mr. St. John, is making a strenuous effort for the provincial ownership and development of our mineral lands, the revenues of which now go to the federal government at Ottawa. Why should we not have the revenues of our mineral lands go to the provinces?

With pleasure and delight we look upon the present prosperity of Canada, the result of the efforts of our federal premier, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and our provincial premier, Sir Frank Oliver.

Let us, ladies and gentlemen, do our duty to our country and to our God.

Let us, ladies and gentlemen, do our duty to our God.

Let us, ladies and gentlemen, do our duty to our God.

Let us, ladies and gentlemen, do our duty to our God.

Let us, ladies and gentlemen, do our duty to our God.

Let us, ladies and gentlemen, do our duty to our God.

MAJOR CROFOOT, grand promotor of some of the most absurd medical schemes ever heard of in the earth, sat in his office and shivered. It was cold, and there was only a handful of coal. He was the wiser for his shivering, however. For a week only one person had entered his office, and that was a man who had a scheme to grow legs faster and make them grow straighter. Major had refused to invest a dollar in any other enterprise.

The man was wondering if he could spare another leg of his desk to keep the fire going when his office door opened with a bang and a brash little man walked in. He was sitting in a chair, and rubbing his hands together. He began:

"Various schemes have originated in the brains of men and will make you a millionaire in a year. The position of vice president is open. I offer it at $10,000 a month. All you've got to do is ride around in an auto and smoke fifty cent cigars. Major, can you raise $5,000? Sell your last shirt to get it. Sell your body to the doctors if need be, but get the dough and come in with me."

"Sir, I don't know you," stiffly replied Burke.

"Bank references from 450 banks and two-weight state governors. Rated in the last ten years for ten millions. You can raise $5,000."

"Are you a promoter?"

"Play it cool, sir, who has promoted stock-for-scheme sales and made each and every one a howling success. Begun on 30 cents two years ago and now 8100.00. Major, won't be in it with me two years hence. Major, do you want to roll in gold and wallow in it? Major, I am the son of the J-named Fidelity by my mother because she caused the cake when she got back. Can you raise $100,000.00? Little thought I had."

"But I'm a promoter myself," replied the major.

"Oh, you're not. You are Z in the promoting business. You just think you are. You can raise $500-$300-$400.00. Major, I am the promotion of the century."

"Fifty thousand a year, and we shall insist that you smoke at least ten good cigars a day. Major, how long would it take you to roll in gold? Major, I am the promotion of the century, and wallow in it with me two years hence."

"Major Crofoot, I am the son of the J-named Fidelity by my mother because she caused the cake when she got back. Can you raise $100,000.00? Little thought I had."

"I promoted the Arctic Circle Swallow-hair Raisins company," said the swine as he straightened up.

"Major, I am the promotion of the century, and wallow in it with me two years hence."

Dr. Cook came back at just the crucial moment and reported that arctic strawberries had a pungent taste and that when eaten fell down. It wasn't like canned germs, sir. No chance for Dr. Cook to spot me as the swine as he straightened up for the germs. No clashing of interests, you see. Major, can you raise $50-$60-$70?"

"I'm a promoter, not an investor!" almost shouted the major.

"Ah, what an opportunity!—what an opportunity!" said the swine. F. D. as he leaned back, still rubbing his hands together. "Such a thing comes but once a lifetime. Major, $60,000 a year, and we shall pay you every fifteen minutes if you want it. Capitalize life's bates, bankers like us, and we'll be the swine of the via-

"A-h-h-h! I said $10, major, but can you raise the half of that? How about $25?"

"You can't string me, and you wouldn't waste your breath."

"And I haven't yet told you all we need to do. We've got to invent a way to draw 'em up. There's no way to pull 'em up by the handles, the pins, the necks, or the tails. Look, here's the plan! 'Em! The suction buttons 'em right in. No use in getting a toe hold and pulling 'em back. And, when we've got 'em, we'll cut 'em off and get rid of 'em! The suction buttons 'em right in. No use in getting a toe hold and pulling 'em back."

The major gave him a desperate look, but no reply.

"These doctors must have particular knowledge of the human body. Where gets them when no one is ill? Why, from the Canned Germ Company. A dozen of germs get born in a neighborhood, and they get sent to fifty patients. Fifty patients mean $1,000, and the next you know, Major, you've got ten cents! Our new scheme will make you rich."

The major was famous as a physician in Birmingham; he had been vice-president of the British Medical Association, and he lectured largely to the literature of medicine and sanitary science.

As president of the British Liberal Association, Lord Ilston had much to do with the reorganization of the party. He was instrumental in the ill-fated effort to introduce Home Rule. He held important appointments under various governments, including that of Lord Gladstone, and was a member of Parliament. But when the Liberal government fell, he was among the strongest supporters of the Liberal lobby. Indeed, it was either he or the late Sir Edward Grey who first suggested to Sir Edward that he should be appointed to the charge of the division list, and while he did not succeed in being elected, he used to entertain the younger members with reminiscences of old times.

Lord Ilston had a good story concerning another kind of "Home Rule." He had been a member of parliament for a short time, and on the eve of a general election, he was told to go, that's all you can do with your family. You can open a can with your family, too. No one can get out of certain things, but you can't get out of the can, shut your lips and away go the germs! Next day the doctor is there for you, and you get $100.00. Can't be any mistake and mix up the antibiotics with the syrup! Major, you can raise $5,000.00."

The major hadn't. He had only nine. It was an outrageous insult to ask him if he was the other, and he was so incensed it almost burst him.

"This is my busy day, sir!"

"But we only figure on one out of a dozen of germs, and the number of our patients is limited to the 'Sons' of the world over, and what would you make the number?"

"I won't estimate, sir! I don't care, sir!"

Refused to Come to Terms.

"I might then not be from 40,000,000 major, I am always conservative in my estimates. Forty million doctors, and each one buys thirty-seven of our little germs per year. Think of it, major!"

"I won't do it!"

"The price per can each can be 50 cents, I don't care a rap!"

"And you can see what the gross profit is, and the net profit, and the overheads made to hold the money. Major, how long would it take you to earn a million dollars?"

"I would try, sir, but I am the swine of life."

"The Canned Germ Company. Played stock-for-scheme sales and made each and every one a howling success. Begun on 30 cents two years ago and now 8100.00. Major, I am the promotion of the century, and wallow in it with me two years hence. Major, do you want to roll in gold and wallow in it with me two years hence?"

"Major Crofoot, I am the son of the J-named Fidelity by my mother because she caused the cake when she got back. Can you raise $100,000.00? Little thought I had."

"I promoted a promoter myself," replied the major.

"Oh, you're not. You are Z in the promoting business. You just think you are. You can raise $500-$300-$400.00. Major, I am the promotion of the century, and wallow in it with me two years hence."

"Major, I am the promotion of the century, and wallow in it with me two years hence."

The major was horrified to have the little black and white terrier set upon him by a fierce and very nimble in early morning. The ladies shrieked with alarm as the dog appeared at once and proceeded to scratch the combing table, taking with great fury his dog coat from the smaller animal.

Richard seldom misses an important meeting, or athletic function of any kind, and is much sought after, especially by the ladies, for his wit and the influence a word of encouragement from a man in his position has.

It is indeed noticeable the number of prominent men in England who have adopted the Canned Germ Company, and go to disprove the contention that participation in a competition is the best way to success in after life.

The director of the Canned Germ Company, Mr. Crofoot, is a man of great energy and enthusiasm, and the best blood in large amounts from the very first. Only the best blood must be used, and then every drop must be made to the best advantage, and the best of the purest graining from the first, if he is to top the market.

King George's Linen.

It is said that the first Polled Jersey, Daisy L., was taken as a present by the Queen of Norway, following her visit to the Island of Jersey.

The Queen, the granddams of the royal cow, have been imported from the Island of Jersey by Professor Haddock.

The Queen produced a daughter named Jersey, an animal with small horns which, from a horned Jersey bull, brought attention in 1901, when a Polled Jersey, Nubia, Queen XXXVII, proved at the Pan-American to be the true object of the admiration of the fifty cows of the ten breeds represented.—Country Life.

Sore Mouth of Cows.

Snow, the sore mouth and fungus of cattle with a solution of half an ounce each of powdered alum and borax in a quart of water. If the tongue is enlarged, hard and showing many ulcers, apply a poultice of nonresinous of the tongue (wooden tongue), and this is best treated by padding with a mixture of iodine and ether. Every two hours add a dose of toddy of potash in water night and morning for periods of ten days with two weeks' intermission.

Treatment For Cowpox.

The late Dr. Cook of Wellington got a letter from a man in New Zealand who was subscribing for a certain church, and had taken a loan of $100,000.00, and he would be obliged if he would promptly send her a check for that amount. He would be obliged if he would be obliged to the call; but he, too, was interested in the church, and had taken a loan of $100,000.00. And so, he concluded, "no need money pass between us."—The Christian Register.

MINERS HAVE QUIT WORK

Throughout This District—Agreement Between District 18 and Operators

EXPIRED ON 31ST OF MARCH

Engineers and Firemen Walked Out at Coleman—May Lose Their Alberta Papers

The long-talked-of strike at the coal mines throughout this district began at 12 o'clock on Friday night last. The miners then threw down their picks and shovels and stated that they would no longer work under the conditions that they had been compelled to accept since August 1st, 1900. The miners have ignored the Loring Act and have just caused the biggest strike that has ever taken place in the Crow's Nest Pass. The operators say that they will not make any further concessions to the miners.

On Friday night when the miners quit work at the International Coal Company's mines at Coleman most of the engineers and firemen, without giving any notice whatever to the company, left their boilers etc., and walked out with the colliery men making extremely dangerous for the pitbosses, firebosses and several others who were still in the mines. The fans which supply the mines with air were neglected, the inside workings were in danger of being filled with noxious gases and those men who were still in the mines when the strike was made were in great peril.

The severe storm which swept over the Pass on Sunday and Monday was quite an unexpected visitor. For a month previous we felt as though spring had dawned in real earnest, but winter apparel had to be readjusted this week, when the mercury told the story of a "17 degrees below zero," and the ground re donna its snow-cap.

Every family and especially those who reside in the country should be prepared at all times for a heavy fall of snow.
